

2021 BOG At-large Member nominee bios

Tiffany Hogan

Tiffany has been a member of NBC since taking a barge class in 1996, although she took an extended sabbatical between 2007 and 2015 due to family circumstances. In her first nine years, she was a member of the Masters Women's Sweeps Team, occasionally taught beginning Sweeps classes and served for a year as Club Secretary. Upon her return, she switched to sculling and recently began competing in the single. For the past two years, she has served on the club Governance Committee. Tiffany is a lifelong athlete, having played Division II softball in college, and recently started to compete in bike racing, just to keep things interesting. Tiffany has seen a lot of positive change over the years at NBC and looks forward to continuing to contribute to club growth. In her professional life, she runs the Member Experience research program at the Commonwealth Care Health Plan of Massachusetts. She is a sociologist by training and teaches the Sociology of Aging once a year at Johnson and Wales. She is a former board member of Youth Pride.

Q Kellogg

Q Kellogg joined NBC five years ago and considers it a second home, with great appreciation for the community here. She's learned to row both sweeps and sculls, quickly becoming a serious competitor. As a lifelong athlete and competitive cyclist, she brings a steely determination and strength to our masters' team. She has served as Co-Captain of the 2019 Masters' Sweeps Program, and in addition, serves on the NBC Planning Committee. In her professional career, Q is part of the research community at URI, working in Water Resources

Q, center, at Head of the Fish, October, 2019

Duuluu (Duulguunnaran) Naranbat

Despite being from Mongolia, a landlocked country, Duuluu learned to row in the US on the varsity team at Trinity College in Hartford as a walk-on coached by Kevin MacDermott and Brendan Murphy. Outside of Trinity, Duuluu sculled at Hartford Riverfront Recapture, where he was coached by AJ Fournier. Duuluu made his way to RI in 2020 when he started his PhD training in Biomedical Engineering at Brown. Duuluu joined Narragansett Boat Club as an enthusiastic new member, quickly transitioning from sweep rowing to sculling. He is a dedicated member of the Mongolian Rowing Community, an advocate for the Mongolian Amateur Rowing Federation, and is motivated to contribute to the NBC community from providing a U27 viewpoint to helping with media content creation (including video editing)!

Duluu at the New England Rowing Championships on Lake Quinsigamond.